Because you gotta know about it

Friday, March 29 Madahoochi

Despite the fact that many people cringe at the description "jam band," it's hard not to enjoy melodies that are both catchy and dynamic, lyrics that are lighthearted and watching a band that looks like they're having the times of their lives. With that in mind, discard all your jam band biases and go see St. Louis' Madahoochi at the Bluegrass Brewing Company from 11 p.m. to 2 a.m. Friday. This is the band's first visit to Louisville, despite the fact that they've opened for the Big

Madahoochi

Wu, Ekoostic Hookah, Jazz Mandolin Project, Strangefolk and the Disco Biscuits, so let's show them that the 'Ville is ready to kick off our shoes and celebrate the humor and simplicity of life. Songs like "shih-tzu" (Missing dreadlock dog/never been washed before/shih-tzu, where are you?/cuz I been missin' you) and "kite" are sure to have you grinnin' and groovin'. There is a $5 cover at the door. Call 899-7070 for more info.—Lauren Mosko
